

Born and raised in Omaha I am grateful to reside here now, yet very fond of the time I have spent away. I focused my university studies on Spanish and Psychology at the University of Nebraska Omaha. Post-graduation ambitions led me to Madrid Spain where I lived and taught English for 2 years. Traveling whenever possible is still something I enjoy whether it be stateside or internationally. I spent several years managing bars and restaurants where I developed an impressive amount of patience and customer service skills. You can still catch me guest bartending now and then when friends need an extra hand. These days I dedicate my 8-5 time working as a patient care coordinator at OneWorld Community Health Centers in South Omaha. My position is interesting as it is a mix of case management, social work, financial counseling, and healthcare administration. I am fortunate and grateful to serve my community while feeling passionate about the work I do there. I recently completed the Medical Interpretation Certification courses at College of Saint Mary's and through a CSM connection I was introduced to The Bloc's role on the education committee, which I am excited to be a part of. In my free time, I like to practice yoga, read, craft, and dance around my kitchen.
